Health officials urge caution

North Central Health Department nurse Marilyn Bors (left) and clerk Savannah Jewell were busy conducting drive-thru COVID-19 tests at the Trimble County Health Department in Bedford Thursday. According to NCHD statistics released on Thursday, Trimble County has reported five positive cases of the coronavirus to date. Three of those patients have recovered and been released while two remain active cases including one new case this week who is currently isolating at home. Districtwide the NCHD, which includes Trimble, Henry, Shelby and Spencer counties, has reported 158 positive cases with 62 still active. There have been four deaths — all in Shelby County.

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

The state of Indiana and city of Madison may have reached Stage 3 of the reopening plan on Friday, but local health department officials were still urging citizens to take every possible precaution to avoid the COVID-19 virus during the latest briefing of the Jefferson County Emergency Management Agency on Friday.

Gov. Eric Holcomb issued a new executive order on Wednesday moving up the beginning of Stage 3 to Friday, meaning that retail establishments and gyms can reopen at 75% capacity and groups of up to 100 can meet. But with that expansion comes added risk for exposure to a virus that is still highly active and local officials are cautioning individuals to remain steadfast.

"We're still recommending that all people ages 65 and older and those with underlying health concerns stay home as much as possible and only go out when necessary," said Tammy Monroe, administrator for the Jefferson County Health Department. "Face coverings are still highly recommended as well. Social gatherings of up to a 100 people are now allowed as long as they maintain

"We moved to Madison when I was young, and I worked with my stepdad at the old Irwin Feed Mill downtown," recounts Dennis O'Neal. "There was a guy named Charlie Warren who roamed the streets wearing the same brown suit and he always had a pair of drumsticks in his back pocket.

"Charlie would tap out a rhythm on the shop windows with his sticks, then he'd break into Sweet Georgia Brown and do a little soft shoe dance. He swore he played with a bunch of big name bands when he was younger, and he kept saying

Early voting slated to begin Tuesday

ON THE WEB

BY COURIER STAFF REPORT

Indiana and Kentucky are at different stages in their preparation for the primary, with Indiana's rescheduled for Tuesday, June 2, and Kentucky's pushed back to Tuesday, June 23 due to the slower reopening process in the Commonwealth.

With that said, voters in Jefferson and Trimble counties have a lot of dates to keep up with this year.

The deadline for absentee ballots in Jefferson County passed on May 21, but voters can still vote early if they hope to avoid crowds on election day. Early voting will take place in the Jefferson County Courthouse first floor hallway by the elevator where there is more room for social distancing. Dates and times are Tuesday, May 26 through Friday, May 29, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.; Saturday, May 30, 8 a.m. to 3 p.m.; and Monday, June 1, 8 a.m. to noon.

Satellite voting will take place at the following locations and times: Tuesday, May 26 and Thursday, May 28 at the Jefferson County Public Safety Center, 620 Green Road,

With about 1.5 inches of rain this week locally and even more than that in areas to the northeast, the Ohio River jumped more than 17 feet this week, leaving low-lying roads along the river — like the 5500 block of South River Bottom Road at Lee Creek pictured here — under water. More rain is forecast for the weekend including thunderstorms today and Sunday as well as more rain next week.

Jefferson County's west end sees flooding, road slide along Ohio River

BY COLLIN OVERTON

Spring rains have taken a toll on roads in the Saluda area this week with the Ohio River spilling onto South River Bottom Road and heavy rain causing a slide on 10 Cent Road.

Highway Superintendent Bobby Phillips told Jefferson County Commissioners at Thursday's meeting that high water from the river has forced the Highway Department to shut down a portion of South River Bottom Road south of Hanover Beach. A section of 10 Cent Road between Prospect and Hanover Beach was also closed by a slide caused by heavy rain and weather erosion over the last couple days when the area received around 1.5 inches of rainfall on already saturated ground, he said.

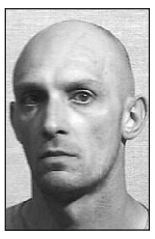
North Vernon man arrested for murder

BY COURIER STAFF REPORT

A Jennings County man has been charged with murder, abuse of a corpse and obstruction of justice among other charges in connection with the death of a North Vernon man who had been missing since March.



Alan Joseph Marantos

Alan Joseph Marantos, 34, North Vernon, was arrested Thursday after a lengthy investigation into the alleged murder of Brian K. Kirby, 52, also of North Vernon.

A joint investigation by the Jennings County Sheriff's Office and Indiana State Police began on March 28, when Kirby was reported missing by his family. He had last been seen alive at an address on Primshire Court in the Country Squire Lakes community near North Vernon on March 27.

Investigators have determined that Marantos attacked Kirby at the home on Primshire Court and then loaded Kirby's body in a vehicle and left the property. Marantos took Kirby's body to another location where Kirby's body was burned and then took the remains to multiple locations around Jennings County where they were discarded.

Investigators collected evidence, including human remains, at numerous locations during the course of the investigation. The Indiana State Police Laboratory recently determined that DNA from the human remains matched the DNA of Brian Kirby.

Marantos has been incarcerated in the Jackson County Jail since April 2, when he was arrested on a Jackson County warrant for robbery.

Marantos has now been served an arrest warrant on charges of murder; robbery, a Level 2 felony; aggravated battery, a Level 3 felony; abuse of a corpse and obstruction of justice, both Level 6 felonies, and intimidation, a Class A misdemeanor. He was also charged with possession of methamphetamine, a Level 6 felony; resisting law enforcement, a Class A misdemeanor and leaving the scene of a crash, a Class B misdemeanor, as a result of his arrest on April 2.

Marantos remains incarcerated in the Jackson County Jail awaiting an initial appearance in Jennings County Circuit Court.

The Indiana State Police and Jennings County Sheriff's Office were assisted by numerous other agencies during the investigation including the Jackson County Sheriff's Office, Seymour Police Department, Indiana Conservation Officers, Indiana State Fire Marshal's Office, Indiana National Guard, Jennings County Sheriff's Office Search and Rescue Team, Jennings County Swift Water Rescue Team, Indiana Department of Homeland Security, Jennings County EMA, Jennings County Prosecutor's Office, Jennings County Coroner's Office, Jackson County Prosecutor's Office, University of Indianapolis Human Identification Center.

Area accidents keep first responders busy Thursday

Two injured on S.R. 56, power knocked out on Chicken Run Road

BY COURIER STAFF REPORT

A driver and passenger were both injured when their SUV left the roadway, hit a culvert and caught fire on West State Road 56 near Lexington on Thursday.

The accident was reported at 3:17 p.m. in the 9400 block of West State Road 56 and was one of two crashes first responders ended up working back-to-back in that area of Jefferson County.

The second crash was reported at 4:53 p.m. in the 5500 block West Chicken Run Road when the boom on a bucket truck became unsecured and struck a utility line. There were no injuries in that crash but the collision damaged a utility pole and transformer, knocked out power to several Duke Energy customers and closed Chicken Run Road until approximately 1 a.m. Friday when the scene was cleared after repairs were made, said Jefferson County Sheriff's Chief Deputy Josh Taylor.

Taylor noted the back-to-back calls kept officers and other first responders tied up for several hours and made for a very busy day.

In the earlier crash on State Road 56, the driver was traveling eastbound when he apparently fell asleep at the wheel, left the roadway, hit a culvert and the vehicle inverted. Names or conditions of either occupant were not available on Friday but both were transported for evaluation and/or treatment. After the vehicle came to rest it caught fire but first responders were able to extinguish the blaze quickly and neither occupant had injuries related to the fire, Taylor said.

The scene of the first accident was cleared at approximately 4:50 p.m. with the second accident reported just 27 minutes later, less that 10 miles to the northeast.

The Jefferson County Sheriff Office responded to both calls with assistance from the Hanover Police Department, the King's Daughters' EMS and the Hanover and Kent volunteer fire departments.

Blood drive

A blood donor wears a face mask, as do Red Cross workers, and donors are placed with social distancing in mind during a blood drive this week at Calvary Baptist Church in Madison. The need for blood and plasma is high in Indiana since donations have lagged during the COVID-19 emergency, leaving supplies strained as hospitals shift to performing more elective procedures.

Ivy Tech, Hanover College planning for August return to classes

Contingencies being developed should virus outbreak continue

BY COURIER STAFF REPORT

Hanover College and Ivy Tech Community College have announced plans for fall semester classes that will begin on Monday, Aug. 24, with both local colleges offering face-to-face courses on campus and Ivy Tech continuing to offer virtual and online opportunities.

Both colleges, like other schools and universities across the nation, were forced to suspend in-person classroom instruction just weeks into their spring semesters in an effort to reduce exposure during the COVID-19 outbreak. Students completed the semester through online classes with all activities, including graduation ceremonies, canceled.

The focus moving forward at Madison, and other Ivy Tech locations throughout the statewide community college system, will be on flexibility and safety for students, employees, and their communities. Should new guidelines from Gov. Eric Holcomb or federal regulations be released prior to the August start date, adjustments will be made accordingly.

Meanwhile, Hanover will use "a strategic, measured approach" in its return to on-campus instruction, focusing on three broad areas, including health and safety of the campus community, academic success and student life and experience. Like Ivy Tech, all decisions will be impacted by national, state and local officials, including the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention and guidelines set by Holcomb's reopening strategy.

"Amidst all of the uncertainty, one thing remains constant — our commitment to educating the next generation of leaders in a safe, meaningful and transformative environment," said Hanover President Lake Lambert.

Ivy Tech will also offer summer semester courses beginning on June 8, virtually and online with the exception of some small labs that may be offered later in the summer.

"Ivy Tech looks forward to students being able to return to campus and take that next step to prepare for a high-wage, high-value career," said Ivy Tech President Sue Ellspermann. "We are carefully balancing our plan to have a focus on safety and flexibility. Our teams continually monitor the recommendations provided by the state of Indiana and federal guidelines. Ultimately, our students' success is the goal, while providing them the safest, most accommodating learning environment."

Both colleges have committed to spare no effort in providing the safest atmosphere for students and staff with an ongoing focus on sanitation and policies reducing the risk of exposure to the virus.

"Ivy Tech is taking all of the necessary steps to ensure a deep cleaning of all buildings takes place prior to the start of classes and ongoing. Preventive protocols to reduce risk of transmission will also be implemented across campuses. Further details will be shared with students, faculty and staff leading up to campuses reopening in August, said a news release issued by the college.

Hanover also will implement additional health and safety protocols including adding a disinfectant specialist and ensuring that all campus and high-traffic areas are regularly and thoroughly disinfected. There will also be modified dining arrangements to enhance protocols and enable social distancing, new protocols for use of disinfectant, masks or other personal protective equipment in common areas, installation of protective shields and barriers at customer service and transaction locations. Hanover will also provide additional hand-sanitizer stations throughout campus as well as the relocation of Health Services to a less-congested campus location, development of quarantine locations and extensive procedures exploring the addition of a telehealth capability for health and counseling services.

Both colleges are also developing backup plans in the event that the virus outbreak poses too much threat for on-campus classes and activities in August.

"While it is our full expectation to be on campus and face-to-face in the fall, we are actively preparing for alternate possibilities and we will be ready," said Lambert, noting that alternate plans will be in place should an outbreak affect the campus in the coming months.

Meanwhile, Ivy Tech said classes will be offered in-person, online, and with hybrid options, allowing students maximum flexibility including both 8- and 16-week terms.

"Thanks to the commitment and innovation of our faculty and staff, the current situation we are all living in, has allowed us to rethink how we deliver higher education," Ivy Tech Provost Kara Monroe said. "The 'new normal' in August will allow students to be in charge of their learning environment. Students will have options, possibly even week-to-week, if they will attend their class online, virtually, or in-person, as their health and safety requirements could fluctuate."

FLOODING

River levels increased by more than 17 feet this week after the region received heavy rainfall to the north and east. Emergency Management Agency Director Troy Morgan said the area that flooded is the lowest point in Jefferson County and is always the first to flood when the area gets consistent rainfall.

Data from the National Weather Service suggests the river has peaked for now and says there is a 90-95% chance it will drop 20 feet before next Tuesday.

In other highlights from Thursday's meeting:

• County Surveyor Mike Pittman said keep track of camping trailers and mobile homes continues to be an issue as several residents are moving them around to different properties in the community without permission and violating land use ordinances. Pittman and Commission President David Bramer both agreed that ongoing work to strengthen the county's nuisance ordinance as part of the revised buffer zone agreement with Madison and Hanover, would help the situation and others like it.

• Commissioner Robert Little recommended the county apply for new grants through the Indiana Criminal Justice Institute for supplemental coronavirus funding. The county is eligible for up to $72,124.48 of funding and the money could be a big help with sanitation at the jail, courts and other offices, Little and Bramer concluded.

• Bramer mentioned that a finished schematic design for the new jail is coming soon, along with an updated financial estimate and pathway in June.

proper social distancing and hand washing or sanitizing stations available.

"We're reopening but we still need to still take the proper precautions," Monroe said.

Jefferson County saw an increase in reported COVID-19 cases this week, with that number rising from 34 to 41 since last Friday. A big reason for the increase, according to Jefferson County Public Health Coordinator Blythe Couch, was the drive-through testing center operated by the state last weekend in Madison.

According the Couch, the state tested roughly 350 individuals over the three-day event with five determined to be positive. Couch said that two of the positive individuals, and possibly a third, were asymptomatic.

"There was an issue with the reports being sent out by the state and that has allegedly been resolved," Couch said of the drive-through testing. "We have been given authorization by the state to look up cases if we need to. If you haven't received your results or are having trouble, you can contact the Health Department at 812-273-1942 and we can help you."

Dr. John Hossler, Jefferson County Health Officer, said he hopes that everybody in the community remains vigilant when it comes to the containing the spread of the disease.

"I'm still disappointed that when I go into a store and I see so many people not wearing a mask," Hossler said. "People should be wearing a mask when social distancing isn't available and employees should be wearing masks if nobody else.

"Avoiding contact, social distancing and face masks are the only defense we have against this right now," he added.

King's Daughters' Health has tested roughly 1,250 individuals to date. Shane Williams, director of emergency services for KDH, said the hospital is slowly returning to normal operations, but noted KDH is proceeding slower than what the governor has recommended.

North Central Health Department nurse Marilyn Bors (right) and clerk Savannah Jewell were busy conducting drive-thru COVID-19 tests at the Trimble County Health Departmenrt in Bedford on Thursday. According to NCHD statistics released Thursday, Trimble County has reported five positive cases of the coronavirus to date. Three of those patients have recovered and been released while two remain active cases including one new case this week who is currently isolating at home. Districtwide the NCHD, which includes Trimble, Henry, Shelby and Spencer counties, has reported 158 positive cases with 62 still active. There have been four deaths — all in Shelby County.

"It's not as easy to restart everything as it is to shut it down," Williams said. "We're asking at this time that if anybody comes into the hospital that is wearing latex gloves, that you remove those gloves. They help you stay safe, but they make it more unsafe for everybody else. And of course, we're still asking that you continue to wear facial coverings."

The Jefferson County Courthouse has released times and dates for early voting for next month's primary election.

The Courthouse will be open 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday, May 26 through Friday, May 29, and from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturday, May 30, as well as 8 a.m. to noon on Tuesday, June 1. All early voting will take place near the first floor elevator, where there is more room for social distancing.

Jefferson County continues to be far behind nearly all of its neighboring counties in reports of positive cases. Switzerland County has reported 18 cases, Scott 105, Ripley 110, Jennings 123 and Clark 446. Jefferson County has had one death, Switzerland hasn't reported any, Scott has had three, Jennings four, Ripley six and Clark 37.

Across the Ohio River, Trimble County has reported five cases while Carroll County has reported six.

Overall, Indiana has had 29,936 positive cases with 1,764 deaths while Kentucky has reported 8,286 cases and 386 deaths.

The next scheduled Jefferson County EMA COVID-19 briefing will be Friday at 10 a.m.

ELECTION

11 a.m. to 6 p.m.; and Wednesday, May 27 at Hanover Park, 200 Spruce Lane, Hanover, 11 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Voters in Jefferson County will vote on all national, state, Congressional and state legislative races as well as county offices.

There are three at-large seats up for election on Jefferson County Council and longtime incumbent Joe Craig is not seeking re-election after 32 years on Council. Republicans Heather Foy and Pam Crozier are seeking their second terms while three other Republicans, Gary Copeland, Charles Johnson and Michael Scott are also on the GOP ballot. No Democratic candidates have filed for the primary ballot for County Council.

In fact, the GOP race for County Council is the only local office with competition within either party and Democrats filed for only four offices — Jon Kuner for Surveyor, Mary Stotts for Superior Court Judge, Molly O'Connor for Recorder and John Hutchinson for Treasurer — with all four running unopposed.

On the Republican side, Mike Pittman is seeking election as Surveyor after being appointed to serve the unexpired term of Jeff Daghir, who resigned Jan. 6, and Deputy Prosecutor Blaine Goode is running for Superior Court Judge after Judge Michael Hensley opted to retire after one term. Incumbent Melinda Klopp is running unopposed for the Republican nomination for Treasurer.

Republican Commissioners Robert Little (Middle District) and David Bramer (Lower District) are both running unopposed with Little seeking his third four-year term and Bramer his second.

Nobody has filed for Coroner and Democrat incumbent Rodney Nay missed the filing deadline in February due to his hectic work schedule, but has expressed his intention to run for a second term in the general election come November.

The GOP has 12 candidates seeking nine spots as state convention delegates while the Democrats have 12 candidates seeking 10 delegate spots.

Meanwhile, no county-level races appear on Trimble County's ballot as residents will decide only between national and state candidates. Candidates for non-partisan elections, such as school boards, Milton and Bedford city commissions and Conservation District Supervisors must submit their names to the county by June 2, Clerk Tina Browning said.

The deadline to request an absentee ballot in Trimble is June 15. Upon requesting a ballot, voters will first have to fill out an application and submit it to the county, then they will receive a mail-in ballot, Browning said.

Citizens filling out absentee ballots can also submit them through a drop box in the lobby area of the courthouse, she said.

Early voting will take place at the county courthouse starting May 27 and running through June 22, during the following times: Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. ; Wednesdays, 8:30 a.m. to noon; and Saturday, June 13 and Saturday, June 20, 8:30 to noon.

Voters will also have the option of picking up an early voting ballot at the courthouse, filling it out in their vehicles and submitting it through a drop box, Browning said.

The original goal was to hold drive-through early voting, but election laws mandate voting take place inside the courthouse, Browning said. Since residents differ in how comfortable they are voting in person and in crowds during the virus pandemic, Browning is trying to give voters plenty of options this year.

BEAT

'They're gonna come back and get me!'

"Now I was already drumming in some bands by then, so I wanted to show Charlie what I could do. He gave me the sticks and I tapped out my best rock beat. 'Get away from that two and four!' he cried. I was stuck on a very basic level, with no feeling or nuance. He taught me this amazing swing shuffle beat that I still use to this day!"

And so began a career as a rock and blues drummer, not to mention sound engineer and music producer, that puts Dennis O'Neal among the most rarefied of local musicians who made it big.

Before his decade long run with the Lonnie Mack Band was over, Dennis would tour the world, rub shoulders with the likes of Stevie Ray Vaughn, Keith Richards, Neil Young and Eric Clapton. And ultimately, play Carnegie Hall in New York City. But we're getting ahead of ourselves. I'm going to save the Lonnie Mack Years for Part 2 of this saga. Right now we're going to focus on Dennis' Madison musical experiences.

"I was going to the Jr. High downtown in the old High School building," says Dennis, "and we had a band called The Intruders. We played all the early Brit Rock stuff that was so popular then. It was me, Patter McLaughlin, Bob Schultz, David Bear and Dave Stutler on lead vocals.

"Now you have to understand the garage band scene back then. There were so many teen bands like ours that you actually had to bid to get a sock hop gig! There were also a lot of venues catering to younger folks, a couple of teen centers, the K of C and a few more. Every week some famous band might be in town playing for the teens.

"Let's see, my high school band was called Heavy Water, still with Patter on guitar, plus Terry Lockridge and Steve Lewis. We actually recorded a single on our own label, White Horse Records, and it used to get a lot of airplay on WORX. That was pretty cool for a high school kid, to hear your song on the radio.

"Not long out of high school in the late 70's I got hooked up with Lonnie and that was pretty solid through the 80s. But starting in the 90's Lonnie got more selective, he didn't want to be out on the road all the time. So I had more time in Madison to get involved with other bands.

"I got with Joe Perkinson, who actually played with Lonnie Mack Band too for awhile, and we started a band called Whalebone. We wanted to play more challenging music, we were tired of the simple rock tunes. Tom Steveley and Big John Adkins joined us. That was a heck of a band, we would try anything, the harder the better.

"And there was another band from that time called 62 East that folks might remember. It was Bill Rosser on piano, he was amazing. Chuck Rogers and me. And Carol Poling, who used to teach out at Canaan I think, was our vocalist. She was the most versatile singer I ever worked with. She could make your jaw just drop sometimes.

"Of course, I have to mention the Blues Devils, I played with them for quite some time. Played with the Doctor's Band. I even ran sound and played with Young Country. I guess I've done a little time with just about every long running band in the area."

Next week in Part 2 of O'Neal's story we'll cover the Lonnie Mack years, as promised, but also reveal how Dennis got into sound engineering. It's an amazing story! See you next week.

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: I have been married to my wonderful wife for 25 years. When we were dating, all my friends were jealous because she was so movie-star beautiful. What they didn't know was how incredible her figure was. We didn't go swimming much, and she always dressed conservatively. I kidded her that I was the only one that knew what a grand figure she had. We had been married for a couple of years when a friend of hers told her about a nude beach not far away in Miami. To my surprise, she wanted to go, and she loved it, especially the attention she received. She had been so shy and conservative in her dressing that I don't think she realized just how attractive she was in all ways.

That was about 25 years ago. Soon after the nude beach, we moved to a home with a pool and she insisted we surround the pool with a six-foot fence. She stayed nude at our pool regardless of who visited except if it were our parents or if anyone brought their children. Then this carried over to indoors. She just stopped wearing clothes unless she was going out. Our social friends sort of got used to it, as did the mailman, FedEx guy and even our favorite pizza delivery folks. She would just throw open the front door and welcome them.

Never have I thought she has been unfaithful; she just enjoys the freedom of nudity. We went to a few nudist clubs around Florida before we started having our children.

Annie, she is now in her mid-40s and while I still think she is lovely, and I love her more than ever, her figure has not aged well. She hasn't changed her lifestyle much (she dresses when our kids have friends over), and I want to suggest that not everyone enjoys seeing her naked at her age. I just don't have the nerve to tell her. Any suggestions? — Seen It All

Dear Seen It All: Your wife was never doing this for anyone's enjoyment but her own. And if you didn't take issue with the nudity when she was 20, then I think it's shallow of you to take issue with it now. Still, I think your wife needs to be more conscientious and careful. Answering the door in the buff could constitute indecent exposure; at the very least, it could make someone uncomfortable, violating their boundaries. Encourage her instead to get back into visiting nudist clubs and retreats, where she can be with consenting adults who share the same interest.

"Ask Me Anything: A Year of Advice From Dear Annie" is out now! Reader gives notes on narcism, empathy

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Readers: Over the last few months, I've received many requests to reprint the letter from "Empathic Daughter of a Narcissist." Here it is in its entirety:

(SET ITAL) Dear Annie: I am writing in response to the letter from "Concerned Care-Daughter," who said she was approaching caregiver burnout. It sounds to me like she is very empathic, and her older sister may have some narcissist traits. Narcissistic traits include being dismissive of other people's points of view and being very controlling.

My mother had many strong narcissistic traits, and I had to learn to set boundaries the hard way. I've found healing through understanding by reading books and watching videos on this topic, including on YouTube. I might not have a professional background in this, but I have learned a great deal.

Narcissists believe they are special and think they know more than others do. When problems come along, they blame other people because they don't make mistakes (or so they believe). They can be ridiculously defensive. They cannot say phrases like, "You make a good point," or "Thanks for the input," or "I was wrong," or "Can you help me understand?" Instead, they mismanage anger and can have temper tantrums, or they can be passive-aggressive if you don't agree with them. They don't care how you feel, or how or why you prioritize things the way that you do. Narcissists will wear out their relationships. They're exasperating and frustrating to take care of, so they have a lot of broken, strained and difficult relationships, especially later in life.

Empaths, on the other hand, intuitively pick up on other people's feelings. They can deeply understand another person's point of view. They have a passion to be helpful; they are sensitive and are deeply moved by beauty. They love to help the underdog. Empaths tend to be idealists. One of their favorite phrases is, "Why can't we all just get along?"

Unfortunately, the narcissist tends to be exploitative and highly controlling. And when they meet an empath, they can think, "Now what can I do with that person that's going to make me feel better and will help me?" They can try to take advantage of the empath's desire to help people.

So it's important for the empath to learn to set boundaries with a narcissist. It won't change the behavior of the narcissist, but the empaths can learn to protect themselves from that behavior and not have the words of a narcissist carry much weight. By doing this, empaths can practice emotional detachment from narcissists, unhooking from caring what they think. They should not let the narcissist define who they are. It's OK to decide how much to do as a caretaker and stick with it. I find phrases like, "That doesn't work for me," and, "Well, it's not going to work out, is it," very helpful. — Empathic Daughter of a Narcissist

Cole to play golf at Hanover

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

Chandler Cole's hopes for a standout senior season on the golf course were dashed by the COVID-19 pandemic, but the Shawe Memorial High School golfer was still able to close out his final year with a personal highlight.

On Thursday, Cole officially signed to play golf at nearby Hanover College in the fall during a small signing ceremony at Shawe. Getting a chance to play at the next level has been a dream for Cole and getting to do it at Hanover was just icing on the cake.

"I'm super excited. I can't wait to go play for Hanover," Cole said. "I came from Shawe and I just love the small-knit community. My family is close and it's just going to be super nice to be able to go to my brother's basketball games and also be right on campus."

Cole said that when he began thinking about colleges, Hanover was really the only school he considered.

"I only visited Hanover one time. I've been there a lot and I was like, this is the school," said Cole, who plans to major in business. "I didn't apply to any other schools or anything."

Cole played several sports during his career at Shawe, including basketball and baseball. But golf was his true passion and the sports in which he feels the most closely connected.

Despite that, Cole did not play golf throughout his high school career. After competing in the sport in junior high and his freshman year, he stepped back and played baseball as a sophomore in order to help boost team numbers so the Hilltoppers could field a team.

He returned to the links as a junior and had an outstanding season, earning all-Ohio River Valley Conference honors and coming just a few strokes from qualifying for regional. His plan was to use that success to springboard into his senior year, but due to the virus shutdown it wasn't meant to be.

"I'm really bummed about (not getting to play). I'm glad that I got my basketball season in, but I was really looking forward to golf this year," Cole said. "But it's for the best for everybody."

"I played golf at Madison and I probably would have died had we lost our senior year. We won the sectional that year and we still talk about that today," Shawe coach Dan Hambrick said. "To lose your senior year in golf would be gut-wrenching. We were going to have a full team this year and they were looking forward to having a couple of individuals or even the team moving on. I know it is what it is and you've got to take in stride, but it makes you sick for these seniors."

At Hanover, Cole will get a chance to play for legendary coach Wayne Perry, who is returning to the links after several years away. Hambrick said he has the utmost trust that Cole will do what he needs to do in order to be successful. After all, he's seen his star perform during high school.

"He's probably improved as much in one season as any kid I've seen, because he was willing to make the changes," Hambrick said. "That's probably going to be Chandler's biggest asset in the next couple of years. He's not a club-thrower, he's not a cusser. He makes a bad shot, he take it, and moves onto the next shot. That's going to be key for him."

Cole said he has talked to Perry and knows what he needs to work on.

CAM's Carter makes history by signing with Lincoln Christian

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

Playing at a small, non-IHSAA school like Christian Academy of Madison means that it can be difficult to get noticed, no matter how good you might be.

But despite those disadvantages, Luke Carter's talent was able to shine through to become the first athlete in the young history of Christian Academy to earn a scholarship deal when he signed with Lincoln Christian University on Thursday.

It was a big moment that was celebrated by friends and family at an outdoor ceremony at the school that provided for plenty of social distancing.

"It's pretty exciting," Luke Carter said. "It's everything I've been working toward."

Carter is the most decorated player in CAM history and his leadership was a big reason why the Defenders put together a spectacular 27-9 record, school records for both wins and winning percentage.

Carter averaged 15.9 points per game this past season — third-best in the area — and was named Southern Roads Conference Player of the Year. He was also a Madison Courier All-Area Second Team Selection and was named to three different all-tournament teams. He finished his career with more than 1,500 points.

Despite those accolades, there was always a question about whether Carter would get enough exposure for college coaches to take a notice. CAM is not an IHSAA member, although it did play a handful of IHSAA schools throughout the year, including a contest at Shawe in December where the Defenders led most of the way before falling late in the game.

Adrian Carter, CAM's coach and Luke's father, admitted that there was a worry about whether coach's would get enough of a chance to see the Defenders play. But in the end, everything worked out.

"I've not coached for very long so I wasn't sure if he was good enough to play or even how the whole process worked," Adrian Carter said. "I had a lot of people help me out and I got a lot of good advice from people. And he put a lot of work in."

Luke Carter's biggest asset was himself. An athletic 6-foot-1 combo guard, Carter is able to both hit the outside shot and drive to the basket and three times this season he scored at least 25 points in a game.

"I think my biggest weakness that I need to work on is getting stronger to get ready for the physicality of college ball," Luke Carter said. "And I think my biggest strength is my quickness."

The school Carter will be joining is an NAIA Division II program located in Lincoln, Illinois, that competes in the Association of Independent Institutions Conference, a 20-member league that has schools all over the country, from New Mexico to Massachusetts as well as the Virgin Islands.

The Red Lions were 10-22 a year ago with most of their games being played in Indiana and Illinois. Carter plans to major in sports management.

"Like he said, he's got to get stronger. It's a big jump to the next level," Adrian Carter said. "But he has the body structure to do that I think and he has the quickness that is so important in basketball. If you don't have the quickness, it's just hard. And I think his shot has improved even since the season is over. I think he'll transition well. It's a big jump up, but I think he'll do well."

Luke Carter is just the first of what could be several Defenders playing at the next level in coming years. Fellow senior Trent Haggard has already committed to Hanover College as a preferred walk-on while Luke's younger brother, sophomore Clay, will be playing for the Southern Indiana Shock AAU team this summer. There are several other players who have shown promise as well.

"I've thought about (being the first CAM player to get a scholarship) but not much. There is going to plenty of more that will come after me," Luke Carter said. "Trent did a great job, too, with our team as well. This school is just amazing."

Seattle H1 race canceled amid pandemic

The 2020 H1 Unlimited Hydroplane Series saw another race fall victim to the COVID-19 pandemic on Wednesday with the announcement of cancellation of the HomeStreet Bank Cup in Seattle.

So far three of the five races on this year's H1 schedule have canceled races due to concerns over the coronavirus. The Guntersville Lake Hydrofest in Guntersville, Alabama, which was scheduled for late June, was canceled in March and the APBA Gold Cup/Madison Regatta, scheduled for Fourth of July weekend, was canceled last month.

Washington state has been one of the hardest-hit areas in the country with the Seattle area taking the brunt of the early cases. The Seattle race was scheduled to be run in conjunction with an exhibition by the Blue Angels July 31-Aug. 2. Now both appearances have been called off.

There are only two races remaining on the 2020 H1 schedule. The Columbia Cup in the Tri-Cities, Washington, is scheduled for July 24-26, the weekend before Seattle. Officials will decide on June 1 whether to continue with the race. The Bill Muncey Cup in San Diego is scheduled for Sept. 18-20.

Like the races in Guntersville and Madison, Seattle officials said the race will be back on the H1 schedule next year. Seattle's date will be Aug. 6-8, 2021.
